STATEMENT OF POLICY

The Wake Forest Jurist is published by the Wake Forest School of Law in co-operation with the Student Bar Association and is mailed free of charge to Alumni of the School of Law. One of the primary functions of the Jurist is to provide a meaningful link between the school of Law and its alumni. Opinions expressed and positions advocated herein are those of the authors and do not represent official policy of the school of Law.

DEAN EMERITUS WEATHERS RETIRES FROM TEACHING

Carroll W. Weathers served as Dean of the Wake Forest Law School from 1950 until 1970 and continued to serve as Professor of Law and Dean Emeritus on the faculty until his recent retirement on June 1, 1972.

Today, five months after his retirement, Dean Weathers' love and interest in the Wake Forest Law School and the legal profession has not diminished. Even though he no longer teaches or practices law, he still serves on the North Carolina General Statutes Commission which he has been on since his retirement as Dean two years ago. He also serves on the Board of Directors of the Denmark Loan Fund of Wake Forest University. He is a member of the Board of Deacons of the First Baptist Church of Winston-Salem and is still active in the Rotary Club.

Dean Weathers welcomes his retirement because it affords him more opportunity to be with his family and friends. His retirement provides him with some leisure time in which he can relax and do more reading. He is grateful to the law school for providing him an office so that he may continue his association with the faculty, staff, and students. He is still interested in students, both former and present, and welcomes visits by them. New students should take advantage of this opportunity and visit with him whenever possible.

On June 23, 1972, while attending the North Carolina State Bar Convention, Dean Weathers was awarded The John J. Parker Award. The John J. Parker Award is the highest honor that the North Carolina Bar Association bestows upon any of its members and is awarded "in recognition of service to the cause of jurisprudence in North Carolina." This award was a timely salute to a man who has dedicated his life to the improvement of legal profession.

His record of these achievements and others too numerous to mention would itself be enough to accord him the recognition he deserves, however, his legendary stature can be attributed to his genuine interest in students and his associates and most of all - his character. The name of Dean Weathers has become synonymous with the word "ethical". Professor Sizemore, who authored the dedication of the March 1972 Wake Forest Law Review to Dean Weathers stated: "Character is the sum total of the attributes of a man. Attributes are summarized in words such as dedication, loyalty, honor, gratitude, determination, selflessness, commitment, honesty and purpose. These words take on special significance when applied to Dean Weathers....Most men have respect for honesty? Dean Weathers had a passion for it. Most men want to see justice done; Dean Weathers insisted upon it. Most men have a good purpose in what they do; Dean Weathers had a noble one. Most men are aware of the problems of their fellow man; Dean Weathers cared."

Dean Weathers' philosophy toward legal education and the legal profession was best expressed in a letter he wrote to his long-time friend, Mr. Hoge, shortly before assuming his new position as Dean. The letter said, in part:

"It's final now. I hope I have done right. I tried to decide it in the final analysis on the question of where lay my duty - I know the opportunity is great. It's why I accepted....If I can stimulate those boys, when they become lawyers, to seek justice, to walk humbly, and set the tone and character of their communities in that fashion, then I am sure I will find satisfaction to compensate for the loss of leaving my home."

By Tyler B. Warren

CARROLL WEATHERS:

“...to seek and do Justice.”

Carroll W. Weathers served as Dean of the Wake Forest School of Law during an era of unparalleled transition and growth. To alumni Dean Weathers personifies the spirit of legal education at Wake Forest. The Editors of "The Jurist" feel it appropriate upon his retirement, to reprint the remarks made by Dean Weathers April 26, 1957 at the dedication of the law building.

On this day we feel a sobering sense of obligation to dedicate not only this building but all our resources, our energies, and our abilities to the finest traditions and highest purposes of legal education, to the noblest ideals of the legal profession. To this end...

We commit the use of this building, and the purpose of this School, to the pursuit of scholarly achievement, to the maintenance of exacting standards of scholarship, to the concept that there is no easy road to excellence in legal education, but that success in the study of law as in the practice can only be achieved by hard work, conscientious application and steadfast purpose;

We commit the use of this building not only to the improvement of legal education in our state and section, but also with our estimable neighbors, those excellent law schools at the University of North Carolina and Duke University, to the further development of an effective program of continuing legal education in our State, in collaboration with the North Carolina Bar Association;

We commit this building and the resources of this School to the thorough training of young men and women to become competent and responsible lawyers, worthy of the confidence of clients and the commissions entrusted to their care;

We commit the use of this building and the resources of this School, tangible and intangible, to inculcating in our students an appreciation of the ideals and purposes of the legal profession: that the objective of every lawyer in each case he tries or transaction he handles should be that justice be achieved; that no lawyer has the right to use the processes of the law to produce injustice or gain for a client that to which he is entitled; that the purpose of the law is justice among men, and the purpose of the honorable lawyer is to seek and do justice;

We commit the use of this building and this Law School to stimulating within the student an appreciation of the obligation of the lawyer to society, the recognition that his profession sets him apart as a man concerned with just relations and righteous living, that he occupies a preferred station of leadership, that he possesses exceptional influence, and that it is not only his privilege but his duty to use his influence and position in behalf of a better social order, and to live as a worthy example to others;

Finally, with a sense of dedication we commit this Law School to strive to afford young people who study within these walls some measure of insight into the meaning and purpose of life, to the end that their lives may be lived in the service of others and they may find the satisfaction that comes from a noble purpose, high ideals and exemplary living.

DEAN'S PAGE

You will note that this issue of the Jurist includes the traditional placement brochure. Our placement program, under the leadership of third-year student, Marvin Pope, is functioning well. Many firms and government agencies are conducting interviews at the School of Law this fall, and several seniors have already taken jobs for next year. If you are thinking of hiring an associate or a summer intern, please contact us; we'll be glad to help in every way we can.

The school year opened on September 5 with enrollment at an all-time high of 353. That total includes 30 women, also a record number. The third-year class consists of 101 students and the second-year class of 102. One hundred thirty-seven new students entered in September, and there are 13 continuing students from the January 1972 class, making a total of 150 who are classified as first-year students. Two-thirds of our students hail from North Carolina, and the remaining one-third from 22 states representing virtually every section of the country. We think that we have an outstanding crop of students, and we are proud of them.

The Admissions Committee had an exceedingly difficult task during the past year in dealing with some 1300 applications for admission. It has been suggested that the Committee might more appropriately be called the Rejections Committee, since it was necessary to reject approximately seven applicants for each applicant admitted. Many of those rejected had good qualifications for the study of law and undoubtedly would have gained admission in prior years. As a result, however, of the vastly increased number of applications we are receiving it no longer is possible for the School of Law to admit every promising applicant. Instead, our task is to select those who are best qualified and most deserving of an opportunity to study law. This requires our careful consideration not only of grades and Law School Admission

Dean Bowman

Test Scores, but also of a great many intangible factors.

The coming year likely will be more arduous than last year as far as admissions work is concerned. Inevitably, there will be many disappointed applicants. I hope that our alumni and other friends of the School will try to understand the present realities of law school admissions. Please be assured that your recommendations of deserving applicants are most welcome and are given great weight in our evaluation of the applicant. At the same time, please keep in mind that we could fill at least two beginning classes with persons recommended by alumni and others who have some legitimate claim to our attention, and also that many outstanding applicants—students of truly exceptional ability—come to us without the advantage of knowing someone in the Wake Forest family who can give them a strong endorsement. Nor can it be overlooked that the needs of the legal profession and of society, as well as the needs of our institution, cry out for attention. There are no easy answers; we can only promise to do our best.

The addition to the law building, for which so many of you have given so generously, is now complete at a cost of approximately $550,000. The new facilities are superb, and the addition blends beautifully into the original structure. Our heartfelt thanks go out to all of you whose contributions have made this expansion possible. A word to those with outstanding pledges: early payment of our pledge will help the School greatly by reducing the amount of money we shall have to borrow on an interim basis in order to pay our contractors.

This fall the School of Law is launching its first annual giving campaign. Each law alumnus will be contacted by a fellow alumnus (a classmate in most cases) in this regard.. All funds raised in this campaign will be used exclusively for the School of Law. Our goal is $50,000, which would match a recent gift of $50,000 by The Kresge Foundation and thus make a total of $100,000 in badly-needed additional funds. We well understand that those of you who have made substantial gifts to the building fund, or who may still be paying off a pledge to the building fund, may not be in a position to give what you otherwise would. It is hoped, however, that each alumnus will make a contribution of some kind. Small gifts add up when the rate of participation is high. And we are hoping for a very high rate of participation. This is important not only because of the amount of money that can be raised through a well-supported annual fund drive (equal to the income from a sizeable endowment), but also because it demonstrates the kind of alumni support that heavily influences the great foundations when they are asked to come to the aid of an institution of higher learning. Your support can provide the margin of excellence that will enable the School of Law to continue to grow in quality and in stature. Please do as much as you can.

LAW SCHOOL NEWS NEW FACULTY

David F. Shores

David F. Shores, formerly of Columbus, Ohio, has recently joined the law faculty as an assistant professor specializing in taxation. Mr. Shores earned his undergraduate degree at the University of Iowa in business administration and subsequently received his law degree in 1967 from its law school.

From 1967-1970, Mr. Shores served as a trial attorney in Washington, D.C. with the Federal Trade Commission during which time he earned his LL.M. from Georgetown University in 1969. In 1970, he joined Porter, Stanley, Treffinger and Platt, of Columbus, Ohio and served as an associate attorney until his recent appointment.

A native of New Hampton, Iowa, Mr. Shores is married to the former Donna Bader of Cresca, Iowa. The Shores' are the parents of two children, Craig, 6, and Christopher, 5.

LAW REVIEW

In September, the Wake Forest Law Review entered its seventh year of publication. Since its inception in the Spring of 1965, the Review has sought to furnish the legal profession with significant material on current legal issues. The Review tempted to provide this information through the use of articles contributed by experts in various legal fields, and through carefully researched and written student comments and case notes. The case and comment section of the Review has provided a valuable educational tool for the student members of the Review by providing an opportunity for extensive legal research and writing.

The increased enrollment in the Law School has led to a substantial increase in the size of the Law Review staff. In order to better utilize the new staff members and to provide the editorial training that is a part of the law review experience, the new position of Associate Editor has been created.

The Law Review was particularly pleased to have had the opportunity to dedicate its latest issue to Dean Emeritus Carroll W. Weathers upon his retirement from the Law School faculty.

MOOT COURT

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE MOOT COURT PROGRAM

To introduce more realism into the curriculum, the School of Law began an enriched appellate argument program during the spring semester of 1971-72.

With the strong backing of Dean Bowman, and the interest and determination of Assistant Professor George K. Walker, the Moot Court Board was established to supervise the first-year class' briefing and appellate arguments, part of the required Legal Bibliography course. Working out of a small room without any guiding precedent, the original board composed of second year (now third year) students went a long way towards establishing a strong viable moot court program, which as it grows, will be on a par with any other program of similar size in the country.

The primary purpose of the Moot Court Board, is to assist in the administration of the appellate argument programs. For the Legal Bibliography course, the Board divided the first-year class into groups of four, two men to a side. These two man "firms" were given the record of an actual problem which had been prepared by Board members. From these records, the "firms" prepared their appeals. The problems dealt with many different aspects of the law, ranging from ecology, international law, and insurance, to simple tort and contract cases; one purpose of all these problems, was to give the students the chance to research areas of the law that they might not otherwise come in contact with. Each Board member was in charge of supervising and advising the students connected with his particular problem; his special duties were aiding the students with research, citation, brief form, oral argument, and insuring the meeting of deadlines. Once all preparations were completed, the oral arguments were presented before a three-judge court composed of Board members who had studied the problems thoroughly through their own research. A critique would follow the arguments, which proved helpful both to Board members and students. In its first year, this program was an unqualified success.

The Moot Court also assists in the administration of the advanced appellate argument program in Practice Court II, a second and third year elective. The same procedure is followed here as above until the hearing stage, at this point, professors and members of the bar sit on the court to add more authenticity and professionalism to the proceedings. As in the case of Legal Bibliography, third-year Board members, including the Chief Justice, Problem Editors, and Justices, assist second and third year students in the selection and preparation of problems, and in the administration of the oral argument.

This year, the Moot Court, in conjunction with the Law School, will enter teams in the national and international competitions which are held among law schools throughout the country. These exercises will be a good measure of our legal skills, and we look forward to establishing the reputation of Wake Forest as a law school which can develop not only intellectual skills, but actual practical abilities as well; and a law school that can compete with any other on an equal plain.

In the future, we hope to move outside the law school and find new areas through which our students can collect and sharpen their legal abilities so that Wake Forest will turn out the best possible young lawyers. These future ideas involve the establishing of a strong intramural appellate argument program, the possibility of preparing actual cases for appellate hearings in the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals under the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure, Rule 13, and the preparation of briefs for hearing under other courts. These programs would be valuable to the law school, as well as to the participating students, and would go a long way towards moving the law school and its educational system into the practical areas of the law.

The Moot Court Board realizes that this program is adventurous in scope, but feel that it is a necessary and integral part of today's legal education. The support of the faculty and students will continue, as shown by the new office space provided in the new wing of the law school, and the rapid upgrading of our program. The alumni could also be invaluable in the continued growth and development of this program. Any advice or other support that any member of the alumni could offer would be greatly appreciated, and would aid in the completion of the task we have undertaken.

JOSEPH B. CHESHIRE V.
CHIEF JUSTICE MOOT COURT BOARD

STUDENT BAR

The main task this year for the Student Bar Association is to perform a service for all of its student members. We feel that Fraternities and the Student Bar exist for different purposes. Ideally, the Student Bar overarches both legal Fraternities and reaches the law student from another angle. Our big goal is to bring an awareness to every law student that the Student Bar can be much more than it has in the past. When these goals are reached, we will be in a much better position to act as the single voice of the law student body.

The Student Bar moved a great distance forward this Fall when it succeeded in persuading the Vice-President for Business Affairs to agree with its viewpoint on a traffic problem affecting from fifty to seventy-five people. This demonstrated clearly that a single voice can be more calm and rational, more credible, and of greater effect than dozens of voices in disharmony.

The Student Bar will this year attempt to initiate a viable Speaker Program, an effort that is as perennial as the grass. It will be hard to live up to the standards set by last May's Law Day, and in that project alone we have no easy job.

We plan this year to evaluate with the Dean's Office the results of the Student Opinion Survey taken last Spring. Additionally, the Student Bar Placement Service, organized by Marvin Pope, has met an early and outstanding success in arranging job interviews for Second and Third Year students. We plan to continue the momentum, and there is no doubt that Marvin's work so far has set a precedent that will make placement easier and more successful in the future.

With the new physical facilities and the current size of the law student body, it is past time to firmly establish the Student Bar as a credible organization, set up to articulate to the law school Administration student attitudes and opinions, and to articulate to the students the policies and goals of the Administration.

Riley Hollingsworth, Chairman

STUDENT BAR AUXILIARY

According to this year's president, Mrs. Helen H. Prince, the purpose of the Student Bar Auxiliary is to afford members the opportunity to become acquainted with the wives of other law students and to enable members to become better future law wives through activities and their association in the auxiliary.

Various activities conducted by the organization are bi-monthly meeting, the publication of a directory including the names and addresses of all law wives, various community service projects and the sponsorship of a scholarship for a deserving member of the student body.

LAW SCHOOL DIVISION A. B. A.

LAW SCHOOL ISN'T JUST BOOKS . . . This year an all out effort is being made to interest the students of Wake Forest Law School in the activities and programs sponsored by the Law Student Division of the American Bar Association. The Law Student Division provides funds, services and information for all law schools and its individual members. It involves itself in such national programs as clinical legal education, law school curriculum reform, lawyer placement services, pro bono work and minority recruitment, as well as funding specific legal projects of individual schools.

Generally, there are two areas for which the division works; for the school as a whole and for the individual student. This fall there are two activities in which Wake Forest as a school will be involved. The first concerns the Law School Services Fund Program.

Last year over $22,000 was allotted to some fifty four law schools upon request, for the various legal projects that the school was sponsoring. Wake Forest did not apply for or receive any of these grants which ranged from $100 to $1,000 per school. This year, however, some $32,000 is available for the program and Wake Forest will apply when final decision upon a project is reached. Ideas have already been received and in the near future, an open meeting will be held for the purpose of suggestions and selection of a legal project to be given in the second semester.

The second service which can involve all the students is life insurance. This insurance which is available for both division members and non members boasts of being one of the best plans available for students and their families. An ABA representative will be on campus during the semester to answer questions and explain the program to interested students.

As to the individual student member, the division provides information and assistance in many areas such as; financial aid, employment opportunities, with the Federal government, placement and referral services and new programs on which information is needed. In addition, numerous publications are available which provide information on everything from procedural problems to streamlining a law office.

Law school isn't and shouldn't be just books. The division is trying to get students to involve themselves in some area of the law which interests them, whether for purposes of information reformation.

John Brown, L.S.D. Representative

PHI DELTA PHI

Ruffin Inn of Phi Delta Phi fraternity will continue its premier position at Wake Forest, donning a new cap of leadership in 1972-73 with Brandt Deal of Winston-Salem as Magister; Ed Harper, secretary; Durwood Laughinghouse, treasurer; and Denny Salvagio, historian. Reminiscent of last year's successful and exciting year included Professional, Social, and Athletic Programs. Phi Delta Phi members, Floyd Dickinson and Randy Gregory, chaired the American Bar Association's "Law Day" which was hosted by the law school in conjunction with the S.B.A. This event was the highlight of the year in a program which was geared to provide the law student with knowledge of the advantages and problems in the varied fields of the legal profession. Graylyn Estates and Tanglewood Park were only two of the locations where the Phi's danced and poured libations to the gods to the sounds of modern rock bands. On the athletic field, Phi Delta Phi teams captured the flags in their respective intramural leagues both in football and softball. On the political scene at school, Phi Delta Phi, Riley Hollingsworth was elected President of the S.B.A.

1972-73 promises even more than last year. The professional committee is working hard to bring some "top-notch" professionals to speak at the law school. Having already featured Lieutenant Governor H. Patrick Taylor as a guest speaker during the month of October. The social calendar will include not only such old favorites as rock parties and cocktail "get togethers", but will also add a tour and buffet at the Schilitz plant, and a "Country Style" all you can eat dinner and Grand Ole Opry entertainment at the Polyrosa. Athletic teams (three in number) have already begun their seasons on the intramural gridiron, and in the spring the links will be host to a Phi Delta Phi golf tournament.

PHI ALPHA DELTA

The national convention of Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity was held in San Diego in August of this year. Timberlake Chapter was honored by being selected the most outstanding Chapter in the country for the third year in a row. Although the Brotherhood is proud of this achievement, it is felt more can be done to fulfill our motto—"Service to the student, the law school, and to the Profession." Specifically we will work in improve our professional programs, social events, and upgrade community involvement programs.

The professional committee sponsored a smoker in October with Attorney General Robert Morgan as guest speaker. Plans are being made to have a seminar on judicial ethics in the old style of the English Inns of Court where everyone attending has a chance to participate. Other programs include a tru minar, a program on administrative law, a domestic relations program, and a talk by Senator Sam Ervin.

View of new Law School addition

Social events promise to be varied and exciting this year. The PAD wives recently had a "game night" to get to know first yearmen's wives. Professor Jim Sizemore's Bluegrass Band is picking an' singing again this year during Rush. Parties are planned for Halloween, Homecoming, Christmas, and other less formal events from time to time, like our Tanglewood outing in the Spring. PAD is also fielding athletic teams in several sports and enthusiasm is high. Parties are planned by the Brothers living in the House during the year.

Community service has become an important part of Timberlake's activities. We will continue and expand the police ride program. The library committee is at work keeping Timberlake's library up to date and accessible to the Brotherhood. It is open 24 hours a day. One of the exciting programs this year is the high school speakers committee.

As in the past, this committee arranges for Brothers to speak to high school groups on various aspects of the law. This year the program is being expanded to include more civic groups such as the Y.W.C.A. Also, the programs are being revised and more topics are being offered. Of course, this service is provided without cost. We feel it provides an insight into the law for the layman and it offers a chance for the Brothers to meet the public, deal with interesting and often challenging questions, and practice their forensic skills.

Much is happening at Timberlake Chapter this year. We believe a professional fraternity must offer a supplement to the classroom education, a chance for students to meet with faculty, judiciary and the practicing Bar, and an opportunity to socialize among friends away from the law school. We sincerely invite you to come visit us anytime.

RECENT DECISIONS

AND LEGISLATIVE PROPOSALS

PRODUCTS LIABILITY: IMPLIED WARRANTY OF FITNESS ENLARGED
Gillispie v. Tea Co., 14 N.C. App. 1, 187 S.E. 2d 441 (1972).

Plaintiff Gillispie went to defendant's self-service store to get two cartons of bottled drinks. When he reached a point about 20 to 25 feet from the shelf where he had picked up the drinks and about 10 feet from the checkout counter, where he intended to pay for the drinks, two of the bottles exploded and plaintiff sustained a laceration of his left wrist.

A directed verdict for the defendant was reversed by the Court of Appeals. It was held that whether plaintiff purchased the soft drinks by taking them into his possession with the intention of paying for them, and if so, whether a warranty of implied merchantability was breached by the store owner and whether that breach proximately caused plaintiff's injuries were questions to be presented to the jury.

The two issues of the case are:

Had an implied warranty of fitness been extended under the Uniform Commercial Code to include a product's container?

When does a sale occur in a self-service store within the meaning of the Uniform Commercial Code?

The defendant asserts that the court should adhere to the fundamental principles which the Supreme Court of North Carolina refused to disturb in Prince v. Smith, 254 N.C. 768, 119 S.E. 2d 928 (1961), where the court held that a container was not impliedly warranted as fit.

On the second question, the defendant contends that the sale in a self-service operated store is completed where the money is paid, i.e., at the checkout counter. The defendant further asserts that since the plaintiff Gillispie had not reached the checkout counter at the time he was injured, there was no sale.

The plaintiff contends that his possession of drink bottles which exploded in defendant's store constituted a sale for the purpose of raising an implied warranty, and that the warranty covers the bottle as well as its contents; that a jury should pass on the issues of sale and causation, and therefore, the judgment of directed verdict in favor of the defendant should be reversed. The plaintiff therefore bases his claim entirely upon a breach of implied warranty. The pertinent provisions of the UCC are found in N.C. Gen. Stat. § 25-2-314 (1965):

(1) Unless excluded or modified (§25-2-316), a warranty that the goods shall be merchantable is implied in a contract for their sale if the seller is a merchant with respect to goods of that kind. Under this section the serving for value of food or drink to be consumed either on the premises or elsewhere is a sale.

(2) Goods to be merchantable must be at least such as ...

(c) are fit for the ordinary purposes for which such goods are used; and...

(e) are adequately contained, packaged, and labeled as the agreement may require...

In the official comment following this section, it is stated:

"(e) applies only where the nature of the goods and of the transaction requires a certain type of container, package or label."

The court construed this statute to mean that in this case the seller had breached the warranty provided, regardless of the fact that it was the container rather than the product which caused the injury. As to the second question involving sales, the court stated that the time of payment is not determinative of the question of when a sale takes place.

The status of products liability has been extended. Before adoption of the Uniform Commercial Code, an implied warranty of fitness did not extend to a container in which a product came from the producer; however, an implied warranty of fitness has now been extended by the Uniform Commercial Code to include a product's container. Finally, the concept of when a sale takes place in a self-service store is defined by Gillispie. Under N.C. Gen. Stat. § 25-2-401 (2) (1965) and 25-2-314 (1965) the time of payment is not determinative of the question of when a sale takes place; if there has been a completed delivery by the seller, the sale has been consummated and implied warranties arise.

Credit Corp v. Wilson, 281 N.C. 140, 187 S.E. 2d 752 (1972)

Plaintiff creditor sued defendant guarantors on a guaranty agreement executed pursuant to a promissory note made by Landmark Inns of Durham, Inc., payable to the plaintiff. The note provided that the maker would pay "a reasonable sum as attorneys' fees, if placed with an Attorney for collection". The guaranty agreement provided for ... "the payment when due of any and all notes...indebtedness and liability...at any time made or incurred by Landmark Inns of Durham...". There was no provision in the guaranty agreement for the payment of attorney fees. Judgment was entered in Superior Court for the plaintiff, including attorneys' fees of $5,877.42. This portion of the judgment was reversed by the Court of Appeals.

On appeal as a matter of right to the Supreme Court, the following question was considered: Where a promissory note contains a provision requiring the debtor to pay reasonable attorneys' fees of the creditor in collection of the note, but a guaranty of payment of the note contains no such provision, are the guarantors liable under N.C. Gen Stat. § 6-21.2 (1967) for attorneys' fees incurred by the creditor in an action on the guaranty contract? The Supreme Court held that they are not. An examination of the reasoning behind this decision will reveal the North Carolina position, as compared to other jurisdictions, and implications of that position.

In 1892 the North Carolina Supreme Court held that provisions calling for a debtor to pay attorneys' fees incurred by a creditor in the collection of a debt were contrary to public policy, and therefore unenforceable. Tinsley v. Hopkins, 111 N.C. 341, 16 S.E. 325 (1892). The court quoted with approval

Bank v. Sevier, 14 Fed. 662 (1882), which said that...“such a provision...[for payment of collection fees]... is a stipulation for a penalty or forfeiture, tends to the oppression of the debtor and to encourage litigation, is a cover for usury, is without any valid consideration to support it...”. Subsequently this prohibition was made statutory, C.S. 2983 (renumbered as N.C. Gen. Stat. § 25-8) and was not repealed until 1967 when N.C. Gen. Stat. § 6-21.2 (1967) was made effective, which provides that obligations to pay attorneys’ fees shall be valid and enforceable. The historical aversion to requiring a debtor to pay costs of collection was alluded to in United Mortgage Servicing Corp. v. Wright, 312 F. Supp. 1239, 1244 (M.D.N.C. 1969) where in a dictum statement the judge said that...“there is a strong policy in...North Carolina against allowing attorneys’ fees...[however]...fees incurred in the protection of security in guaranty transactions are allowed if authorized by the agreement or contemplated by the parties.”

The question in this case is whether the parties contemplated that the guarantors would assume only the debts incurred by Landmark Inns, or “all its indebtedness and liability”, including attorneys’ fees provided for in the note. Three factors were considered by the Court in weighing this question. The first was whether the obligation assumed by the guarantor was to be considered separate and distinct from that of the maker, or coextensive with it. Other jurisdictions have found that the obligations are coextensive, so that when a guarantor guarantees a note his agreement covers everything in the note, including a provision for attorneys’ fees. National Bank & Trust Co. of South Bend v. Becker, 50 Ill. 2d App.151, 200 N.E. 2d 40 (1964). However, the Supreme Court noted that North Carolina has consistently held the obligation of a guarantor to be separate and distinct.

The second factor considered was the time element as it affects the unity of the agreements.. In Townsend v. Alewel, 202 S. 447, Mo. App. (1918), the court found that a guaranty of payment of the notes meant the note as written, which included payment of attorneys’ fees. However, in that case the guaranty was written on the note and could be considered an integral part of it. In the present North Carolina case the guaranty was not only a separate document, it was executed three months after the note.

The third factor which the Court considered was that the action was brought against the guarantors alone. In other jurisdictions guarantor liability for attorneys’ fees even when the guaranty agreement is silent seemed to be based on suit being brought against the maker and guarantor jointly.

In light of the historically strong North Carolina position which has been against debtor obligation for collection costs, and in light of the holding in this case, the safest way to provide for payment of attorneys’ fees pursuant to N.C. Gen Stat. § 6-21.2, (1967) either in a primary obligation or in a guaranty agreement, would seem to be to include an express provision to that effect. That way there will be no question of what the parties contemplated.

LEGISLATIVE PROPOSAL

Helping the Environment to Help Itself:

Model Legislation for Environmental Guardians.

One of the major obstacles, if not the major obstacle, that must be overcome by anyone wishing to bring an environmental lawsuit is the requirement of standing. The United States Supreme Court has consistently adhered to the doctrine that a party, in order to present a justiciable claim, must have "such a personal stake in the outcome of the controversy as to assure that concrete adverseness which sharpens the presentation of issues upon which the Court so largely depends for illumination of difficult...questions". Baker v. Carr, 369 U.S. 186, 204 (1962). (For additional cases on standing, see bibliography). With the increasing frequency of environmental lawsuits, legislation to eliminate many of the legal obstacles to environmentally oriented litigation has been proposed in several states, but as of this writing only Michigan and Florida have enacted this type legislation. The Michigan Legislature enacted in July, 1970, a model law that gives citizens or groups standing to sue any person or group, including governmental agencies, to protect natural resources and to insure the right of the public to a healthful environment. Mich. Stat. Ann. § 14.528(201) et. seq. (Supp.1972). Under the Michigan Act, the plaintiff is not required to show personal economic loss. The Florida law, Fla. Stat. Ann. § 403, 412 (1971), is patterned after the Michigan Act and similar bills have been introduced in New York, Massachusetts, Colorado, Pennsylvania and Tennessee. A similar bill has also been introduced in both houses of Congress entitled "Environmental Protection Act of 1970." S.3575, 91st Cong., 2d Sess. (1970) introduced by Senators Hart (D-Mich.) and McGovern (D-S.D.); H.R. 16436, 91st Cong., 2d Sess. (1970) introduced by Rep. Udall (D-Ariz.). This bill gives any person standing to sue in the federal courts for suits involving the protection of the air, water, land, or public trust of the United States from unreasonable pollution.

Although these liberalized standing laws are a point in the right direction, why should we restrict ourselves to just giving standing to people; why not give standing to the very objects we are trying to protect, the air, land, water, trees, and other natural resources? The lawyer's world is filled with inanimate right-holders: trusts, corporations, joint ventures, municipalities, and nation-states, to mention a few. The trees, rivers, and air, all "natural objects", have all been on this earth longer than man. Why should not these natural objects have legal rights enacted along traditional guardianship lines and recognized in our courts to protect themselves from pollution, impairment or destruction by man?

The North Carolina Legislature has enacted no laws liberalizing standing for environmental suits, but it has enacted legislation regarding the environment, most specifically the Environmental Policy Act and the establishment of a Board of Water and Air Resources. N.C. Gen. Stat. § 113A-1 et. seq. (Supp.1971); N.C. Gen. Stat. § 143-214 et. seq. (Supp.1971). There are no cases directly in point, but it appears that to get standing in environmental actions in North Carolina one will have to show that he is a real party in interest, and bring an action for nuisance or perhaps mandamus proceedings against the governmental agency charged with enforcing environmental regulations. N.C. Gen. Stat. § 1-539. (Supp. 1971); N.C. Gen Stat. 113A-42 (Supp. 1971).

If North Carolina is to really protect the environment, it needs to consider adopting the guardianship approach to environmental protection. Giving legal rights to the environment may seem like a radical approach to some, but is it any more radical than the idea that a corporation is a "person" was to early jurists? Christopher D. Stone, Professor of Law at the University of Southern California, has recently published an enlightening article in which he writes at length on why we should give legal rights to the environment, using a guardianship approach. Stone, Should Trees Have Standing? - Toward Legal Rights for Natural Objects, 45 S. Cal. L. Rev. 450 (1972).

The guardianship approach is good for several reasons. First is the fact that the act liberalizes standing in environmental actions by allowing any person or group to become a guardian of endangered air, water, or other natural resources upon his showing that they are in fact endangered. Professor Stone notes that the potential "friends" that such a statutory scheme would require will hardly be lacking. The Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth, and the Izaak Walton League are just some of the many groups which have manifested unflinching dedication to the environment and which are becoming increasingly capable of marshalling the requisite technical experts and lawyers. As guardian, such a club would be entitled to bring an action in the endangered object's name without having to show that the "rights" of the club's members have been violated.

Secondly and probably most importantly, the act provides that the court must take into account the damages to the environment, and makes the air, water or other natural resources beneficiaries of monetary awards. These awards would be placed in a trust fund and administered by the guardian solely for the purpose of making the environment whole again. Under our present system, even if a riparian owner brings and wins a water pollution suit for damages, no money goes to the river or stream to repair its damages.

Unlike the liberalized standing approach, the guardianship approach would provide for an effective voice for the environment and give us ways in which we can conserve and protect it. This approach might also relieve one of the fears the courts have about liberalized standing; how to prevent the courts' doors from being thrown open to an onslaught of litigation. For example, one club brings suit as the Yadkin River Preservation Society and loses; what happens when the same members reorganize a year later as Wake Forest Students Opposed to Polluting the Yadkin River, and bring an action in the new name? Does res judicata apply? The rules for class actions may ease the more obvious problems, but as Professor Stone points out, even so, "court economy might better be served by simply designating the guardian de jure representative of the natural object, with rights of discretionary intervention by others, but with the understanding that the natural object is 'bound' by an adverse judgment". Stone, supra at 470.

If we are to survive on this planet we call Earth, we are going to have to protect and conserve our environment. The guardianship approach is a big step toward the goal of man living in harmony with the environment.

STATUTORY PROPOSAL: ENVIRONMENTAL GUARDIAN ACT

An act to provide for the appointment of guardians for the air, water, and other natural resources and the public trust therein; to provide for actions for declaratory and equitable relief and judgements for money damages for protection of the air, water and other natural resources and the public trust therein; to prescribe the rights, duties and functions of the attorney general, any political subdivision of the state, any instrumentality or agency of the state or of a political subdivision thereof, any person, partnership, corporation, association, organization or other legal entity of the state and to further provide for judicial proceedings relative thereto.

Section 1. Short title. This act shall be known and may be cited as the "Environmental Guardian Act".

Section 2. Appointment of guardians ad litem for the air, water and other natural resources.

(1) Any person, partnership, corporation, association, organization or other legal entity of the state who perceives that a public natural resource is endangered may apply for the creation of a guardianship for the air, water, or endangered natural resource in the superior court of the county in which the air, water or endangered natural resource is situated. Any application for guardianship under this section shall be supported by affidavits of not less than two technically qualified persons stating that to the best of their knowledge the activity which is the subject of the application for guardianship damages or reasonably may damage the air, water or other public natural resource of the state by pollution, impairment or destruction.

(2) Any person, partnership, corporation, association, organization or other legal entity who is appointed guardian may be given rights of inspection (or visitation) to determine and bring to the court's attention a fuller finding on the air, water, or other natural resources' condition.

(3) If there is any indication that under substantive law some redress might be available on the behalf of the air, water or other natural resource, the guardian is entitled to raise the rights of the air, water or other natural resource in the name of the air, water or other natural resource and the public trust therein.

Section 3. Action in the superior court; granting of relief.

(1) Any person, partnership, corporation, association, organization or other legal entity who is entitled to maintain an action in the name of the air water or other natural resource and the public trust therein as provided in sec. 2, subsection (3) may maintain that action in the superior court of the county where the alleged violation occurred or is likely to occur for declaratory and equitable relief against the state, any political subdivision thereof, any instrumentality or agency of the state, any person, partnership, corporation, association, organization or other legal entity for the protection of the air, water and other natural resources and the public trust therein from pollution, impairment, or destruction.

(2) In granting relief provided by subsection (1) where there is involved a standard for pollution or for an anti-pollution device or procedure, fixed by rule or otherwise, by an instrumentality or agency of the state, the court may:

(a) Determine the validity, applicability and reasonableness of the standard.

(b) When a court finds a standard to be deficient, direct the adoption of a standard approved and specified by the court.

(3) If the court has reasonable ground to doubt the solvency of the plaintiff or the plaintiff's ability to pay any cost or judgment which might be rendered against him in an action brought under this act the court may order the plaintiff to post a surety bond or cash. Provided, that such security shall not be required of plaintiff if the requirement thereof would unreasonably hinder plaintiff in the maintenance of his action or would tend unreasonably to prevent a full and fair hearing on the activities complained of.

(4) The court may appoint a master or referee, who shall be a disinterested person and technically qualified, to take testimony and make a record and a report of his findings to the court in the action.

(5) The doctrine of collateral estoppel and res judicata may be applied by the court to prevent multiplicity of suits.

(6) This act shall be supplementary to existing administrative and regulatory procedures provided by law.

Section 5. Granting of relief; imposition of conditions; damages.

(1) The court may grant temporary and permanent equitable relief, or may impose conditions on the defendant that are required to protect the air, water and other natural resources or the public trust therein from pollution, impairment, or destruction.

(2) In all action under this act, when judgment is against the defendant, the defendant shall be liable to the guardian ad litem to the full extent of the actual damages to the air, water and other natural resources and the public trust therein.

Section 6. Establishment of trust fund.

(1) In all actions under this act, when damages are assessed against the defendant a trust fund shall be established and the money awards paid to the trust.

(2) The air, water or other public natural resource in whose name the action is brought shall be the beneficiary and the guardian ad litem shall be trustee.

(3) The money awards paid to the trust shall be administered by the guardian ad litem as trustee and used solely for the purpose of rectifying the damages caused by the defendant to the air, water, or other natural resources and the public trust therein.

VIEWPOINT

With this issue of the Jurist, we inaugurate a new section. Viewpoint is designed to give to attorneys and others a forum for their views on the legal profession, courts, jails, current justiciable issues, advice to law students or beginning lawyers, or whatever else is deemed worthy of comment. We solicit submissions for this section, and urge you to take advantage of this opportunity to be heard. Articles need not be formal with cites included, but may be so if the author feels this to be helpful. Please type your contributions, double-spaced, and keep the length to around 600-750 words. Sent to: Articles Editor, Wake Forest Jurists, Wake Forest School of Law, Winston-Salem, North Carolina 27109.

We are very pleased to initiate our new section with a solicited contribution from Chief Judge Raymond B. Mallard of the North Carolina Court of Appeals, giving his opinion as to why lawyers most frequently fail to comply with the Rules of the Court of Appeals.

The Rules of Practice in the Court of Appeals of North Carolina have now been in existence for over four years, but despite this fact and despite the fact that these rules are not radically different from those of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, many lawyers continue to have difficulty in complying with the rules and thereby properly perfecting appeals. One reason for this is undoubtedly the failure to distinguish between exceptions and objections and between exceptions and assignments of error: It is the purpose of this paper to attempt to clarify these distinctions.

It is most important to note at the outset that the appellate courts of North Carolina ordinarily will not consider questions on appeal that have not properly been presented by objections duly made in the trial court, exceptions duly taken and assignments of error properly set out, although they may do so in exceptional circumstances.. See State v. Hewett, 270 N.C. 348, 154 S.E. 2d 476 (1967). If no assignments of error are made in a criminal case, the judgment will be sustained unless error appears on the face of the record on appeal. State v. Higgs, 270 N.C. III, 153 S.E. 2d 781 (1967) and State v. McClam, 7 N.C. App. 477, 173 S.E. 2d 53 (1970).

An objection is a declaration to the effect that the particular matter or thing under consideration is not done or admitted with the consent of the one objecting, but is by him considered improper or illegal. See Black's Law Dictionary, 4th Edition. The purpose of an objection is to raise in the trial court and preserve for appellate review questions which would not otherwise appear on the record or be ruled on in the trial tribunal. In some instances it serves to prevent a waiver of a right. It also serves to stop an answer to a question put to a witness, or to prevent the introduction of other evidence, until the trial tribunal has the opportunity to rule upon its admissibility. Another function of an objection is to lay the foundation for an exception to an adverse ruling by the trial tribunal.

An exception is a protest against the ruling of the court upon a question of law. It should be predicated only upon a specific and definite ruling by, or action of, the trial tribunal. It is prerequisite to review of a matter objected to unless such has been dispensed with by statute or rule of the court. The failure to save an exception where one is required may waive the right to present the alleged error for review.

An assignment of error is a ground relied on for reversal on appeal and performs the same function in the appellate court that the complaint in the civil action did under the old rules of civil procedure in North Carolina. It is also analogous to a bill of particulars in a criminal case. See State v. Wadford, 194 N.C. 336, 139 S.E. 608 (1927). Usually, an assignment of error must be based upon at least one exception, and its purpose and function is to advise the appellate court and the appellee of what propositions of law the appellant relies upon for reversal of the trial court and of the factual situation in which such proposition of law arose. In most cases, its function is two fold: To inform the appellate court and the appellee of the alleged error and to limit the briefs and oral debate on appeal to the particulars stated therein.

Stated in another way, the purpose of the assignment of error is to point out one error of law which it is asserted the trial court committed, in order that the appellate court and opposing counsel may know what particular point of law is relied on for reversal on appeal. It limits discussion on appeal to that one particular point. (Of course, there may be many assignments of error.) A well-stated assignment of error also serves to draw into focus the matter upon which appellant relies for reversal. If it is to be asserted that the same error relating to the same principle of law was committed more than once during the trial, all such errors are required to be grouped under one assignment. Thus, an assignment of error may be said to be a specification of error (bringing into focus one question of law) asserted to have been committed by the trial court. It must present to the appellate court in a correct, concise and specific manner the particular ruling relied on for reversal. It must be complete within itself: A mere reference to other parts of the record, which it is contended reveal the error, is insufficient. See State v. Kirby, 276 N.C. 123, 171 S.E. 2d 416 (1970); State v. Benton, 276 N.C. 641, 174 S.E. 2d 793 (1970); G.S. 1-282; Supreme Court Rule 19(3) and Rule 21; Rules of the Court of Appeals, Rule 19(c) and Rule 21.

For the lawyer engaged in appellate practice, the distinctions among objections, exceptions and assignments of error are vital ones and must be thoroughly understood as the initial step in properly preparing and presenting a case on appeal.

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY

SCHOOL OF LAW

1973 GRADUATES

Each year, the graduating law class has prepared a graduate brochure to assist in placing class members with suitable employers. This combined endeavor of the Jurist staff and Student Placement Committee hopefully will do more. At a minimum, we want to make you aware that a student organization exists to facilitate your effort not only in contacting the law school in search of prospective employees but also in interviewing individual members of the 1973 graduating class.

By contacting the Student Placement Committee, you will ensure that all students will be made aware of your visit to the school. The committee will prepare a background information sheet on each interested student to be forwarded to you for your perusal and possible screening. Also, an interview schedule will be arranged within a time frame you specify; however, it is recommended that interviews be of at least twenty minutes duration. Any further arrangements that you deem necessary will be completed by the committee, e.g., meals, overnight accommodations. Upon your arrival, a student will be present to greet you and show you to the designated interview room. Also, a copy of the interview schedule will be made available if not previously provided. Beyond this point, it is anticipated that any contact between the firm and the student or students selected would be on a personal basis. However, if the placement committee can be of any further assistance, we welcome that opportunity. Realizing that some of you have established old and trusted relationships with members of the law faculty and prefer to screen prospective associates through them, the committee will provide any assistance it can in this regard.

Although concerned primarily with placing third year students, the placement committee is anxious to assist first and second year students seeking positions as summer clerks with law firms. Basically, the same procedure as outlined will be followed in placing any student from the school. Let us emphasize, however, that these procedures are not concrete and the student committee is not inflexible. Of course, we welcome placement opportunities, and if these measures do not best serve your interests, use the method you find most convenient. We hope to avoid formality while at the same time provide a service.

If any employer determines that he is unable to visit the school but would prefer to have interested students visit him, we will make the class aware of the opportunity and provide background information sheets as available.

Again we welcome the opportunity to assist you and look forward to seeing you at the law school.

PLACEMENT ISSUE

ALUMNI PLACEMENT

The School wishes to invite alumni to participate in its placement service. The facilities of the service will be open to alumni who are returning from military service, who wish a change in location, or who for other reasons are in the placement market. By the same token, the School invites potential employers who are interested in attorneys with prior experience to inquire of the placement service with regard to such persons.

Alumni wishing to take advantage of this service should send their resumes, with an appropriate covering letter, to the placement service.
